Orange launches SaferKids, a child-friendly device, and offers affordable gift ideas for everyone

As the festive season approaches, Orange is making it easier for everyone — young and old — to get equipped at great value, with particular attention to younger users.
To ensure that a first device also means greater protection, Orange is launching SaferKids to support families as their children take their first steps towards independence. Orange is also expanding its SaferPhone range with solutions designed for every age.

SaferKids: supporting children in their first steps towards digital independence

With SaferKids, Orange offers families an alternative to a smartphone for a child's first device.
The SaveWatch Plus 2 connected watch from European brand SaveFamily is available for €68 during the Black Friday period[1], from 19 November to 2 December 2026. After this period, it will be available for €89 after cashback, instead of €139, when subscribing to the no-commitment SaferKids plan, priced at €4.99/month for Orange Internet customers and €9.99/month for other customers.
This connected watch enables children to contact their loved ones and be reached whenever needed. Parents can define authorised contacts, check the watch's location and schedule periods without connectivity — for example, during school hours, homework or sports activities. An SOS button also enables children to call a preferred number whenever they need help. These settings can easily be managed through the SaveFamily app installed on the parent's phone.
To help families get started with both the watch and the app, Orange provides tutorials and support via 3900. Advice on supporting children in their digital lives is also available on the Bien vivre le digital website, in the Espace des parents section (content available in French only).

SaferPhone: a complete mobile offer designed for teenagers

For parents looking to equip their child with a first phone while helping them use digital services safely, Orange offers the SaferPhone 5GB plan at €5.99/month for Orange Internet customers. In addition, a new SaferPhone 100GB plan is available for high-school students at €13.99/month[2] for Orange Internet customers.
These offers include an age-appropriate Child Protection Pack, available free of charge on request, to help reassure parents and support safer digital use by teenagers. The pack includes parental controls, real-time phone location tracking and a cyberbullying alert service[3] on WhatsApp and social media, as well as personalised support with installation.
For the purchase of a smartphone, Orange also offers €50 cashback on a selection of phones.
